- Old Kingdom – 2660 to 2180 B.C.
- Middle Kingdom – 2040 to 1640 B.C.
- New Kingdom – 1570 to 1075 B.C.

Old Kingdom

During the Old Kingdom, Egypt established their civilization and culture

- God Kings or Pharaoh centralized power and established a polytheistic religion
- Pyramids were built to honor the dead.
- Hieroglyphics or the Egyptian writing system developed

Middle Kingdom

During the Middle Kingdom, Egypt continued their traditions.

To deal with the rising population, they improved their trade and transportation systems.

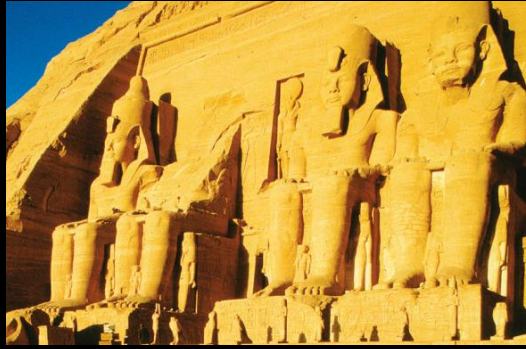

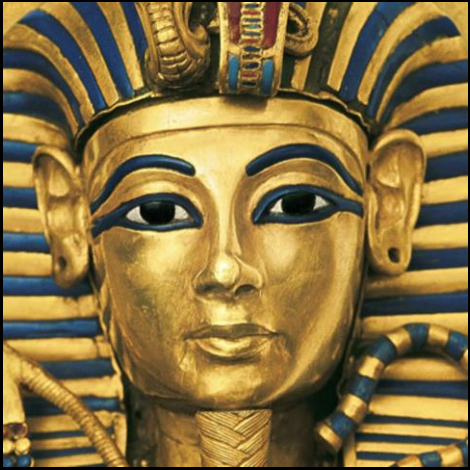

- Builders dug canals,
- drained swamps, and
- enhanced the irrigation system.

This kingdom fell to the invaders the Hyksos.

New Kingdom

In the New Kingdom, Egypt became conquerors or an empire.

Led by leaders like Queen Hatshepsut and Nefertiti and Kings like Ramses II and Tutankhamun, the pharaohs of this kingdom conquered lands down the Nile and into the Fertile Crescent.

Pharaohs also built many temples and other structures to commemorate battles and show of their wealth.

These dynasties declined due to corruption and invasions.

The Indus River Valley: Geography

The Indus River Valley is located in the Indian Subcontinent.

- The river carries silt while the monsoons or seasonal winds bring rain.
    - From October to May, India experiences dry winter winds from the desert.
    - From June to September, India experiences wet summer winds from the Sea.
- These two climate features can make the planting seasons unpredictable.

The Indus River Valley: Cities

The first cities were constructed around 2500 B.C.

- The largest cities in the Indus River Valley are Mohenjo-Daro and Harappa.
- What makes these cities different were that it was planned in a precise grid system.
- The inhabitants of this river valley even created an underground sewer system for their bathrooms.
- This is something that would not be done to this specification for another 4000 years!

The Indus River Valley: Culture

Harappa had a language made up of 400 symbols that we are not able to decipher or decode.

Scientists believe they worshiped animals.

Archeologists have proven that they were traders for artifacts have been found as far as the Fertile Crescent.

The Indus River Valley: Decline

- Archeologists are not sure specifically what caused the Indus River Valley to decline around 1750 B.C.
- The three events that maybe the factors of decline are tectonic plates, their resources dried out, and invasions.
- The Indian subcontinent has a lot of earthquake activity, which may have caused the city to crumble as well as caused the river to change course and/or flood destroying society. There is also evidence of different people conquering the region.
